1.40 Carat · GIA Certified · 18kt Yellow Gold

Date: May 8, 2026

Report: MV-2026-0508-EMERALD-PENDANT

Cost Basis: $1,300 (stone + setting)

GIA Report: 5231930138

The Stone: GIA Report #5231930138

FIELD	DETAIL
GIA Report #	5231930138
Carat Weight	1.40 carats (GIA) · jeweler estimate: 1.5–1.8ct — discrepancy to verify
Species	Natural Beryl (Emerald)
Origin	Colombia (GIA confirmed)
Shape / Cut	Oval · Brilliant-cut crown, Step-cut pavilion
Measurements	8.35 × 6.07 × 4.60 mm
Clarity Enhancement	F2 — Moderate (resin/oil combination)
Setting	18kt Yellow Gold pendant · 2.82g total weight
Cost Basis	$1,300 (stone + setting)
Cert Lab	GIA (Gemological Institute of America)

⚠ Flag — Carat Discrepancy: GIA reports 1.40ct. A jeweler Adam consulted estimated 1.5–1.8ct. This gap may indicate the stone was re-cut after GIA grading, or the jeweler was estimating visually. Recommended: reweigh the physical stone before listing to confirm final carat weight and adjust pricing accordingly.

Cert Transparency Notes

F2 / Moderate enhancement is a known and accepted category in the fine emerald market. Major platforms (Leibish, 1stDibs, JR Colombian Emeralds) all disclose treatment levels explicitly. F2 sits between Minor Oil and Fracture Filling — it is not a concern if disclosed, which this GIA report does. Buyers working at this price point understand the treatment scale.

GIA is the strictest major lab — an origin-confirmed Colombian GIA report is a strong trust signal that commercial labs (GRS, CD, IGI) cannot replicate. This is a genuine competitive advantage in positioning.

Key Market Observations

- Cert premium is real. GIA-certified Colombian emeralds command noticeably higher prices than commercial lab equivalents. A GIA F1/Minor 1.36ct in platinum+diamonds: ~$8,292. Comparable 1.5ct 14K without GIA: ~$5,266 discounted.
- Treatment is disclosed across all major platforms. F2/moderate enhancement is standard market category. Full transparency with GIA report is an asset, not a liability.
- Metal choice drives price meaningfully. 14K gold solitaire, no diamonds, 1–2ct: $2,500–$6,500. Platinum or accent diamonds push to $7,000–$12,000+.
- Finished pendant vs. loose stone matters. The closest finished 18K gold pendant benchmarks suggest a $2,500–$6,000 retail range, clustering around $3,500–$5,500 depending on cert and design.

Recommended Retail Price

OPTIMAL RETAIL PRICE POINT

$3,800 – $4,200

18kt Yellow Gold · GIA Certified Colombian Emerald · 1.40ct

- Below comparable 1stDibs GIA pieces ($5,000–$8,000) — "best value GIA pendant under $5K"
- Above uncertified eBay/rubylane pieces ($1,500–$3,000) — GIA origin premium fully justified
- 2.9–3.2× cost basis ($1,300) — healthy margin at this price tier
- Stone alone at Leibish = $7,100+ — customer perceives setting as included value

SCENARIO	PRICE RANGE	MARKUP ON COST	POSITIONING
Conservative	$2,800 – $3,200	2.1–2.5× cost	Volume-focused; build first sale
Market-Rate ✓	$3,500 – $4,500	2.7–3.5× cost	Balanced; aligned with JR + 1stDibs
Premium	$4,500 – $5,500	3.5–4.2× cost	GIA provenance story; leverage cert as anchor

⚠ Carat Flag (repeat): If the jeweler's 1.5–1.8ct estimate is correct, the stone is materially heavier than GIA records. This would shift pricing toward $4,500–$5,500. Recommended action: reweigh the physical stone and re-read the GIA report before listing.

Marketing Angle

"GIA-Certified 1.40 Carat Colombian Emerald Pendant — $3,999.
The stone alone would cost $7,100+ elsewhere. Yours includes the 18kt gold setting."
